The Chicago Record, of a few issues ago, reproduced a letter written by the members of the Warmolts party who are wintering at Fort Resolution. In the letter the party stated that they had been deserted by Warmolts; that the last started out on a hunting trip and had never returned. The third day after he had gone and as they were preparing a search party to find him they received a letter from him, brought back by an Indian, in which he stated that he had started back for Chicago. They accuse him of being an adventurer and also state that they have only six months provisions instead of the eighteen months supply he led them to believe he had purchased with the money they paid him. They ascertained the quantity of their supplies by having a Hudson's Bay Co. officer make an inventory of their outfit. The same story of their desertion was told by Chase Griffin in a letter which he wrote here, but the story was not published as it was thought it might be a mistake. The letter, however, was read to the council on the occasion of Warmolts' application for engagement as agent of the town coming up for consideration, and in view of the statements therein the council decided, as previously reported, that they would not require Mr. Warmolts' services as an agent of the town.

L. McNamara; secretary, Mrs. Beck.

MESSRS. PURDY and Thomas, South Africa, who left for the Landing on the 27th inst., arrived here on Friday last in good shape. P. Purdy, of this town, accompanies them on their trip which they expect will last for two years. Their ultimate destination is the head waters of the Pelly. They will return this way and if their trip has not been the success they anticipate Mr. Purdy will go into placer mining on the Saskatchewan and is confident he can make a success of securing the free gold by a process similar to the one used in South Africa.

A PARTY of twelve, from Chicago, under the leadership of P. J. Curran, an old experienced policeman, arrived on last train.

The names of the party are: D. M. Parker, C. E. Wetherman, J. A. Murphy, Jas. Carroll, Fred Dunch, L. Van Housden, S. W. Morgan, F. B. Atherton, W. M. Randleman and L. Parker. Mr. Curran has been instrumental in inducing a large number of Chicago citizens to take the Edmonton route in preference to the coast.

He was for over eight years in the detachment at Fort Saskatchewan and helped to build the Fort there under Col. Jarvis, in the early days.

A TORONTO party of 9, Yukon bound, arrived last week and went into camp in a tent near the Massey Harris building. The members of the party are: R. J. Battle, R. Van Atter, A. Einvauden, R. W. Smith, J. T. Montgomery, F. A. Davidson, A. Davidson, F. Kenrick and Wm. Henry. Mr. Montgomery is the inventor and patentee of the Klondike combined canoe and sleigh. The bottom half of the contrivance can be used as a flat sleigh or canoe and has a cover of its own size, but made of lighter material. When open water is reached the cover, which is hinged to the side of the lower half, can be turned back, making a twin canoe. A number of the canoes or sleighs are on exhibition near McCauley's stable.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, FEBRUARY 7th, 1898

MR. OLIVER ON THE ALL-CANADIAN ROUTE.

Winnipeg Free Press: The lecture delivered by Mr. Frank Oliver, M. P., on "To the Yukon, via Edmonton," attracted a large and appreciative audience to the Grand opera house on Saturday evening. As it was given under the auspices of the board of trade, Mr. D. W. Hole, president of the board, occupied the chair. Among those on the platform were Rev. Dr. King, Rev. Dr. DuVal, Rev. Hugh Pedley, Messrs. R. MacKenzie, A. Macdonald, A. Strong and R. W. Jamieson, M. P.

The chairman introduced Mr. Oliver as one who had for the past twenty or twenty-five years been a consistent champion of legitimate western development. He touched briefly upon the influence that Mr. Oliver had exercised upon the floor of the legislature, through his newspaper, and more recently in the house of commons. He was delighted to see so large and representative an audience, including so many ladies.

Mr. Oliver explained that his wish had been to discuss the subject with the board of trade in a business way for the purpose of reaching a business conclusion. He did not expect that any large number of those present would be likely to go to the Yukon either by Edmonton or by any other route. He had not been to Dawson City, and he did not know that he could bring forward a single new fact concerning it; but he hoped to show the commercial advantage of linking together by the best possible means of communication the grain fields and cattle ranges of the Red River and the Saskatchewan, and the gold fields of the Yukon. The route of which he was to speak was not the Edmonton route; Edmonton was but a point on this route. It was the Canadian route; the line of travel whereby the business of the Yukon would be done by the rest of Canada; it was the only all-Canadian route. The question was asked: "Has anybody travelled over it?" The first made over done in the Yukon by white men was by men who went by one or the other of the two Edmonton routes, and who carried on business for many years. Even yet the business was done in the waters of the Yukon by the Mackenzie route. The same advantages that existed forty or fifty years ago exist to-day. The first men who mined gold there, Messrs. Harper and McQuestion, went in twenty years ago by the Mackenzie river route. It was not his intention to compare the different routes, but to state the existence and practicability of the two via Edmonton. First, there was the water route. Yukon was not a point, but a vast territory, 500 miles in length, almost entirely gold-bearing. The route would depend upon the part to be reached; if it were the lower from Dawson City downward, the Mackenzie river offered the advantages of down stream navigation. (Starting at Athabasca Landing, steamboat navigation was continuous with the exception of a portage of 35 miles across from the Mackenzie to the Porcupine river. There was no other route by which a man by his own exertion could take in such a large quantity of supplies. It was the route that had been used by the H. B. Co. for the last forty years and it was in use to-day. Going to the lower Yukon was largely a matter of taking in supplies; distance was not of so much account as carrying capacity. If a man was not able to go to the Yukon with a year's supplies he had better not go. The route by which the largest amount of supplies can be taken at the smallest expense in the most advantageous route. Dawson City is only the starting point in the Yukon for the prospector or the miner. To-day the camp at Dawson City is overrun with men seeking claims. But the claims in that locality are all staked. Men are now practically going to the Mackenzie river for information as to what point they had better strike out for. Those who take the Mackenzie route pass through a gold bearing country all the way from the Peace river, 500 or 600 miles. It was a fact that men from the United States who had taken this route, in view of the great natural difficulties in getting over the passes and the very probable congestion of traffic. He was not denying the coast routes, but he wanted to point out that the interests of Canada, the whole Dominion east of the Rocky Mountains, were bound up in the development of these interior routes. However good the coast routes might be for other people they were no good for Canada. The thousands of people who are outfitting to go to Dawson City, some at Edmonton, some at Vancouver, some at Seattle, are spending large amounts of money. Of what portion are Canada and Canadians receiving the benefit? It was a fact that although the men are going to get Canadian gold and to work in Canadian territory, nine-tenths of the expenditure they are making does not in any way accrue to the people of Canada. The larger proportion are outfitting in Seattle or Tacoma. What proportion do we get of the trade of those outfitting in Vancouver and Victoria? What proportion of the flour and bacon is the producing part of the Dominion selling there? Every pound bought by those starting from Edmonton is a product of this country. $100 spent at Edmonton is $100 added to the wealth of the farmers of this country. If the Yukon country is to be developed this country should share in its prosperity. It is said that distance is against us; yet the route by the mouth of the Yukon is 2,000 miles up stream, while that by the Mackenzie is down stream. A knowledge of the Mackenzie route does not exist throughout the greater part of Canada; the case is one in which a campaign of education would be a very desirable thing. By this route the steamboat navigation can be linked together by the construction of not more than 110 miles of railway; sixty at Grand Rapids, sixteen at the portage between the Mackenzie and Porcupine rivers. Not only would this give access to the Yukon by stream, but it would open up a line of communication of 1,500 miles through a country the development of which would add greatly to the wealth of the Dominion, and would benefit the business of this and the agricultural interests of this country. The overland route, Mr. Oliver went on to say, is not in the same position as the water route, but it is certainly practicable, and one that would be of advantage at the present time to the people of this country. Mining is hard work, miners want strong food, and beef is the best they can get. By opening a cattle trail we could have the supplying of the population of the Yukon with beef, which would be half the expense of living of the miner. There is a greater expenditure in getting out gold than the gold is worth. It doesn't cost the men who get it more, but it costs the men who don't get it. The cost is chiefly that of food supplies, and if we can sell them their supplies we are going to get more gold out of the Yukon than the miners get. The man who sells the miner his supplies has more money than the miner in the long run. We have the only route by which cattle can be driven in to the gold fields. With the opening of that route we are at once sure of a fair share of the prosperity that will result from the opening up of the mines of the Yukon. Give us the necessary expenditure that fat cattle may be driven on foot from Edmonton to Pelly river, and we will share in the advantages of that trade when beef is a dollar a pound. But if cattle can now be driven in, why ask for any improvements? It is one thing to be fitting trade and producing satisfactorily. Mr. Oliver did not claim that it was possible at present to drive fat cattle through to good advantage. We ask, he said, for the good offices of the commercial men of this city and the people of this northwestern country and of the whole of Canada to secure the expenditure of the comparatively small sum for the opening of that route to the Pelly river for cattle. Besides, if the route is practicable for cattle it is practicable for men and horses. Horses will then be purchased, and also the men's outfit in Canada. Give us the cattle trail, and we will share very largely in the general outfitting trade and the supply trade. We particularly ask that it be opened now. This is the year of the rush, and it is hardly possible that there can be another year of as great a rush. From the rush that has already started, Edmonton has profited to a considerable degree, but the proportion going this way is small in comparison with the number going by the coast. If work were commenced at once on the road from Edmonton to the Pelly river, if people were assured of good facilities of getting through to Pelly river this summer, there would be an immediate benefit to the people of Canada that they might just as well have as not. The people of the Northwest are interested on account of pack ponies. There are thousands of small horses of very little value, that have been sold as low as $5 a head; but already these have doubled or trebled in price. Figure what that means, a very substantial increase in the wealth of the country. By inducing people to go this way these horses will be advanced in price. The opening of this route now would attract through our vacant lands a most desirable class of people, who might turn their steps backward to establish their homes among us as agriculturists. While we are spending thousands of dollars in sending immigration agents through the United States, there are people of a most desirable class who have money of their own to spend, who are not only willing, but anxious to go through our country and see its advantages. Canada is known now as it never was before; and by opening up these interior routes we should advertise it as a great agricultural country. It is for us to form our views before the government and press our claims upon them. The policy which I advocate and which I hope you will advocate, and Eastern Canada will advocate, is a policy whereby every dollar taken out of the Yukon will pay a royalty to the agricultural interests of the West.

The audience, during Mr. Oliver's address, gave frequent expressions of approval of the statements which he made and the policy which he advocated; he was applauded from time to time while speaking and again as he resumed his seat.

Mr. Kenneth MacKenzie then arose and made the following motion:

Whereas, from information made public, it is apparent that no serious obstacles exist to prevent the construction of a wagon road from the Peace river to the Nelson river, and of a pack trail thence to the Pelly river; and whereas the construction of such a wagon road and pack trail will give, not only direct communication from Edmonton to the waters of the Yukon system, but open up a line of communication to the interior districts of the Peace country and immense areas of agricultural and grazing lands; therefore be it resolved that this meeting considers that it is the duty of the Dominion government to at once undertake the construction of a wagon road between the Peace river and the Nelson river, and a pack trail thence to the Pelly river, in order to accommodate the large number of miners now taking this route to the Peace and Yukon gold fields.

Mr. Alexander Macdonald seconded the motion in a short address calling attention to the gold and mica mines and coal oil wells waiting development in Alberta.

The resolution was passed unanimously and a vote of thanks was also enthusiastically passed, presented by the chairman, and suitably acknowledged by Mr. Oliver.

AROUND DUNVEGAN.

The following letter has been received by Dr. McInnis from a friend at Dunvegan. The letter was written in reply to a request for information concerning the country and trails along the Peace, and the fact that the writer has resided for twelve years in that district, during which time he has travelled extensively through the surrounding country, and held weight to his observations.

The letter reads as follows: In speaking of the country north of this (Dunvegan) I will give you what I know about it, and I have lived here for some eleven or twelve years. There is no white man's trail from here over to the Liard, although perfectly practicable, but there has hitherto been no incentive to travel there. Right here at Dunvegan there are Indians and half breeds who have gone within sight of the Liard's banks, with horses. They did not follow any trail, but pitched about hunting. Jack Graham was seen across the Nelson and presumably he got there or else he would have returned. Ogilvie's pack trail is a myth as far as a horse trail is concerned. Of course Ogilvie did see trails, but they were man and dog trails. The horse trail starts from H. H. Hope. The party went out to explore the route to the Peily (Lisp. Moodie's police exploring patrol) travelled on ice up the Halfway river to a point at which the above mentioned Hudson's Hope trail crosses the river. You may know, however, that from St. John to this point on Halfway river there is a practicable trail for pack horses. I have never heard of any cause why this overland route should not be perfectly practicable. Once at the foot hills there is plenty of feed for horses, but in the middle pass there is very little for a day or two. In going by the middle pass you would not go by the Liard river unless you crossed it on the west side beyond its junction with the Peace river. This country is fine prairie land for sixty miles, terminating twenty-five miles north of Dunvegan, and then on to a point where Lisp. Moodie left the ice on Halfway river, not touching Fort St. John at all which would be fully twenty miles south. There is no reason why Fort St. John should be touched at all. By the route from Lake St. Ann to Fort St. John you have the Little and Big Smoky, the Bear, the Clearwater, the Pine and then the Peace river to cross. All of these have banks, compared to which the Saskatchewan is a mere rut. On the north route, that is north of the Peace, there is not one river with the banks more formidable than the Sturgeon at St. Albert, and then there are only two. One does not cross the north Pine river at all unless you turn from your direct course and go to St. John. After leaving the Peace the North Pine runs northwest for eight or ten miles and then seems to run parallel with the Peace towards the Halfway river, but it soon comes to a head. This is the pack trail now used by the Indians, on the north side, but they always go into Fort St. John because they want to, though they say the direct route is to go across country and it is much shorter to Halfway river. In the winter time by ice to Fort St. John is the best, but you must travel before the 8th or 10th of April, possibly before, say the last week in March. Hay and feed are for sale here by Bremner & Co. There is plenty of hay to be purchased at Peace River crossing and Lesser Slave lake. This winter has been mild with very little snow.

The above firm have moved into their new store in the Hubberton brick block, where, with increased space and larger stock, they are prepared to meet the increased trade occasioned by ever extending popularity, and the Klondike rush.

The store itself is one which the town may well be proud of. Fitted with a handsome plate glass front, heated by furnaces, lighted by acetylene gas, large, light and roomy it is a creditable sample of a modern business block. The interior throughout is handsomely finished in light woodwork with high ceiling finished in bright British Columbia fir. Down the centre are large tables laden with clothing for the Klondike trade while the shelves on one side are almost entirely filled with the finest special line, "boots and shoes," and a neatly enclosed corner offers seduction to the intending purchaser seeking high class covering for his pedal extremities. The store occupies the entire lower portion of the block and also a large part of the basement, which will be used for the storing and opening of goods. A small though most office occupies the corner, where the proprietor will be prepared to explain to those who need it the rule which has made his business a success, namely that he does business on a cash basis only.

"A PLEASURE TRIP."

The following letter lately received from the north, speaks for itself:

Lesser Slave, Jan. 18th, '97.
Messrs. F. Oliver, M. P., and J. A. McDougall, Mayor, Edmonton.

KIND SIR:—To ourselves and the people of Edmonton we feel ourselves under lasting obligations for your many kindnesses and to your government for its ready response to our appeal for a guide. The tender of its able employee, Mr. Chalmers, D. L. S., was a very great favor to our party, generally speaking. Three fourths of our party have arrived and while some may find it impossible to accomplish their undertaking, we believe we are justified in saying that the fault is theirs. It surely is not to be laid at the door of Mr. Chalmers, yourselves or your government. The men of our crowd have naught but praise for the country and its people, both white and Indian, and your own kind interests shown and taken. God has surely favored us with a mild season. We can say that we are agreeably surprised at the feasibility of the winter trail chosen by Mr. Chalmers, and consider it a very practical one, feed generally fair, and all facts considered it is in many respects a pleasure trip.

We will press on in the direction of St. John not fully deterred as to our movements beyond Dunvegan. Thanking you again for your many kindnesses and extending same to the government and the people of your immediate and surrounding community.

We are yours, respectfully,

I. B. C. FISHER,

Geo. W. FUGARD,

or the party.

GOLD ON HAY RIVER.

The Free Press of the 1st inst., has the following telegraphic despatch from Prince Albert: "Word has just been received by Bishop Pascal from northern missionaries that gold in large quantities has been discovered on the Hay, Buffalo and other rivers running into Great Slave lake, a distance of about 700 miles north of here. The information is considered perfectly reliable. Citizens are greatly excited, and parties are preparing to start as soon as possible. The route is a comparatively easy one. The discovery was made by a party of twenty-seven, who were wintering there en route to Yukon; and the missionary there reports that gold is being brought in every day by Indians."

The Regina correspondent of the Free Press, with commendable zeal, but doubtfully veraciously, also sends a despatch stating that "the first batch of persons for the Yukon by the Regina and Prince Albert route," found gold in large quantities on Great Slave lake, etc. The only parties who are wintering at Great Slave lake en route to the Yukon are the Langworthy's Griffin's and Warwolls expeditions. These first two parties are composed of Edmonton men and the third is a Chicago party and all of them went in by Edmonton and down the Athabasca. The word of the reported gold find was received by Mrs. Chas. Griffin, of this town, from her husband, who is wintering there. The letter arrived on the 25th of January and appeared in the BULLETIN on the 27th of that month. At that time Mr. Griffin's brother and several members of the other parties were away on an expedition to Hay River to ascertain the truth of the story. At the time the letter was written they had not returned, but word of the result would be sent in by Ed. Nagle, a trader there, when he came in in a few weeks. Mr. Nagle is expected in any day now.

St. Albert

—TO THE—

-Yukon-

ST. ALBERT

Is a good business town nine miles north-west of Edmonton, directly on the road to the Great Gold Fields of the Peace, Liard and Pelly rivers and beyond.

There are several large establishments here, including Stores, Butchers, Hotels, Blacksmiths and Freighters.

Intending Gold-seekers are advised to come here, for living is cheap, reliable information from the natives of the country may be had for nothing, and this is the last outfitting point for the Klondyke.

Packhorses to any number can be bought here cheap, and encampments with abundance of wood and water are to be found everywhere.
